We Are Creators

We are divine beings dreaming we are not divine. We learn to pretend to be that which we are not. Then we forget we made it up and believe it is “real”. This is what happens when we “grow up”. When we were children we had a great appreciation for our imaginings. When we were young we pretended every day, and every day we were told it wasn’t “real”. Eventually we stopped pretending and began believing instead. Then we learned to believe the greatest lie of all; we are not perfect, we are not divine. We were told over and over again that we were flawed and imperfect until we began to believe those lies. Eventually, we gave up and agreed with everyone else and began our journey into hell - the hell of imagined imperfection. Most of humanity shares the dream of our imperfection, a dream of hell.

Our domestication teaches us to forget that we are divine creators. We are taught to judge ourselves and others and to imagine imperfection and call it “real”. After we judge, we learn to punish, we learn the experience of being a victim. All the while we are told more lies about how this is how it is. Judging yourself and others and punishing yourself and others is what we are “supposed” to do. We are told the lie that this is the “normal” way of life. We are not told the truth because few have known the truth. Most of humanity is suffering because they do not know the truth and they believe in lies. Since everyone is suffering, people think it is “normal”.

The truth is; the natural state of human existence is eternal love, joy and bliss. Very young children know this. The young who have yet to be domesticated and taught to believe in lies know how to live free and in the moment. Young children know how to imagine and create dreams which are based on unconditional love.

We create all the time. We are always manifesting, bringing forth our creations. The human species is the greatest manipulator of form on the planet. The evidence is in all we create from the materials before us. We rearrange materials to bring forth physical form from our dreams. We are always creating; every thought, emotion, spoken word, written word are forms which we manifest or bring into existence from the formlessness of the universe. We are always in communion with the universe. Unfortunately, humans have been manifesting or directing their creative power through channels which are disharmonious. Humans have been channeling their creative energies through fear. As a collective, we have been manifesting through fear for thousands of years. The result of our creative activities is apparent in the physical forms of; controlling governments and social systems, dysfunctional communication, separateness within humanity, hatred of our fellow man and war. Human suffering is the manifestation of our creating through fear.

All humans are creators whether they acknowledge it or not. The miracle of the human potential is that we are creators and we bring forth form from the formless. How we channel our creative power determines how we manifest our intent. We are free to create through love or fear. We can create heaven and we can create hell.
